

COOLIDGE SPEECH GIVES IMPETUS TO CAMPAIGN

Reaction to Former President's Address Considered Very Favorable

IS THE FIRST SINCE 1929

Strongly Urges Re-Election of President Herbert
Hoover

By James L. Kilgallen
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(INS)—Republican leaders today interpreted the reaction of the country to the speech of Calvin Coolidge before a capacity audience at Madison Square Garden last night as "highly favorable" and as giving sharp impetus to the campaign to re-elect President Hoover.

It was Mr. Coolidge's first political speech since he left the White House in March, 1929, and that gave it special significance. He had the nation as an audience, the address being broadcast over a coast-to-coast radio hook-up.

Mr. Coolidge, in advocating the re-election of President Hoover, warned against the country changing presidents at this time of economic stress.
He declared the decline in trade has ceased and confidence has begun to return.

"At the present time," he asserted, "the country knows that its worst troubles are probably past and economic recovery is beginning."

Mr. Coolidge reiterated his support of President Hoover and reasserted his faith in the Republican party. He disputed the charge that Mr. Hoover lacked leadership by referring to "what appears to be offered in its place." And he could find but little evidence.

He declared that one of the greatest services the Republican party has rendered "has been the support of sound money."

"Some people are saying that as things could not be any worse we might as well try a change," declared Mr. Coolidge. "That is a very dangerous principle to apply to the discharge of the duties of American citizenship."
"Things are much worse in other parts of the world. They could be a great deal worse here than they are and would have been much worse if it had not been for the vision, the courage and the leadership of President Hoover."

Contending that the casting of a ballot should be a thoughtful function, he asserted:

"We are told that business is not good. That the fault must lie with the administration and therefore the proper remedy is to vote against the President. No government has even yet been devised that could make the people prosperous all the time. But a bad government will constantly keep the people in distress."

Mr. Coolidge insisted that the national government has "adopted one measure after another to support and encourage business and agriculture." Of the tariff, he said:

"We are told that we ought to have a competitive tariff. Those words are not new but their meaning is not very definite."

Commenting on the leadership of President Hoover, Mr. Coolidge declared:

"It is very easy to criticize after the event. Constructive leadership is not so easy."
"As early as November, 1928, the Democratic leader publicly urged the presentation of a constructive program by his party. Yet when that party elected a speaker of the House and assumed control of that body no program had yet been presented."

In conclusion Coolidge reviewed the career of Mr. Hoover, the "accomplishments" of his administration and declared:

"The more this campaign has progressed the more I am convinced that the public welfare requires that he should be re-elected."

important meeting in the parish house

Scales for the Scaly

(By "The Stroller")

The old-time fisherman has been replaced by a most modern one—at least in Hulmeville.

Howard Black caught a fine wall-eyed pike in the Delaware river, Monday. And here's where the new departure comes in—instead of telling his friends the size by spreading his hands to great widths, "Blackie" made his way along Main street carrying in one hand the pike and in the other a set of scales.

This new method of fish-story telling does away with skeptics.

IDENTIFIED AS HOLD-UP MAN

William Kuarterman, 32, of 5237 Mercer street, Philadelphia, was brought to Bristol at noon, today, and identified as the man who held-up at the point of a gun the Argonne Inn, at Johnsville, on October 7th, and the residence of William Snyder, River Road, Croydon, October 3rd.

Kuarterman was arrested in Philadelphia yesterday by Detective Schwartz on suspicion of robbery on information of Bucks County Detective Russo, state police from Morrisville and Doylestown barracks, and Constables Thomas Crawford and Harry Oliver, of Bensalem Township.
As soon as Kuarterman walked in the door at the municipal building, here, at noon, he was identified by Anna Carpella, Elmer Roberts and Joseph Hackenbrook, of Johnsville, and later by Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder, and a number of others of Croydon.

It is alleged that Kuarterman accompanied by others went to the Argonne Inn on October 7th, and held-up the occupants, relieving them of money. Kuarterman today refused to talk or make any statement implicating any others.

PARKLAND GIRL FOUND

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Charges that she was drugged and abducted from her home at Parkland, Bucks County, on September 26, and since held captive in a South Philadelphia house, were made by Catherine Hornberger, 16, when she was picked up wandering on the streets of Camden early today.
Police here, however, asserted the girl twice before had been arrested for running away from home and it was revealed she served 25 days in a detention home for girls in Delaware County. She was placed in the custody of her father.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY'S WORK IS ENDORSED

Dr. Wilmer Krusen and Leigh Mitchell Hodges Help
Launch Drive

PLAN FOR SEAL SALE

Speakers at the dinner-meeting held Monday evening at the Fountain Inn by the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society to launch the 1932-33 Christmas Seal sale to provide money for carrying on the society's work, emphasized the opinion that there never has been a time when the society's fight against tuberculosis in the county was more needed.

Dr. Wilmer Krusen, former Director of Health of Philadelphia; Leigh Mitchell Hodges, of the Children's Bureau, Philadelphia, and the toastmaster, Burgess George S. Hotchkiss, called attention to the increased number of undernourished persons, particularly children, who are easy victims for the Great White Plague. Rev.
Charles F. Freeman opened the meeting with prayer.

Forty persons attended the meeting and heard the appeal for more generous support of the society's work.
Mr. Hodges stressed the point that helping the anti-tuberculosis work is within the grasp of any one who realizes the need for the protection of their children and themselves, because it is a matter of pennies in the buying of stamps.

Dr. Krusen discussed the discovery of the scientific means of combating the disease, the importance of early discovery of the disease, the efficacy of the present methods of fighting tuberculosis, the importance of public health education and the special need at this time of undernourishment to provide for educational work such as the Bucks county society carries on.

Toastmaster Hotchkiss, after speaking briefly of the purposes and work of the society, the unusual need for its activity and the excellent co-operation of physicians and school nurses, mentioned the State's appropriation of $10,000 for milk for October as likely to be of great assistance.

Leigh Mitchell Hodges, the first speaker, modestly narrated his personal part in making it possible to launch the Christmas stamps when the idea was presented by Miss Bissell, of Wilmington, years ago, in order to get $300 for a tuberculosis shack. Enlisting the very earnest co-operation of E. A. VanValkenburg, editor of the North American, Mr. Hodges said, brought about the devoting of a great deal of publicity to popularizing the "stamps." It brought such a hearty response that thousands of dollars were raised for that one venture—and from this the Christmas seals grew.
Today, said Mr. Hodges, this work

Bucking Line for Hoover

If ball-carrying prowess on the gridiron counted towards winning an election, the chances of the G. O. P. for keeping its candidate in the White House would be still better than they are. Here are three noted grid stars who recently called on President Hoover to offer their support in his campaign for re-election. Left to right in the group, are: Albie Booth, former Yale star, "Red" Cagle, once a mighty line-crasher for Army, President Hoover and Eddie Hays, Harvard halfback. They flew to Washington in a plane named the "Forward Pass."

IMPORTANCE OF KNOWING THE FACTS IS STRESSED

Miss Gladys Harper, Yardley, Speaks at W. C. T. U.
Meeting

IMPARTS INFORMATION

Miss Gladys Harper, Yardley, gave an inspiring address to 50 people at the W. C. T. U. meeting in the Travel Club home, last evening.

The young woman urged the importance of knowing and telling facts about prohibition in order to refute wet propaganda. For instance she told of the following appearing in the Washington Post: "The repealers are saying that the dry laws made many moonshiners and bootleggers and put into their hands large sums of money.
The statement is as untruthful as it would be to say that the law prohibiting bank robberies has made many bank robbers." Miss Harper added "The fact is prohibition has enriched very few violators of the law. The total cost of enforcement from 1929 to 1931 was $284,156,524; while collections from fines, penalties, and revenue from lawful (medical and sacramental) distilled and fermented liquors during the same period were $548,588,884, thus giving a net profit of $264,432,360. This indicates there is a good economic argument on the dry side of the debate."

"Know the truth, and the truth shall make you free!" Repealing the 18th Amendment would be as futile as the following proposition: "The dry roof is leaking in various places. It injures the paper and splashes our faces. The wet makes us sore and the damp makes us cough; so here's the proposal—let's take the roof off!"

Miss Harper also impersonated in costume a Russian peasant woman who had emigrated to Canada hoping that her husband might escape the temptation of drink, but found to her sorrow bootlegging rampant there. In the near future Miss Harper will bring a group of Y. P. B. members to give a sketch at the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour.

A brief talk was also given by Mrs.
Lucy Harper, county W. C. T. U. president, and mother of the first speaker.
Mrs. Harper urged the importance of being well informed and armed with facts and courage to meet the claims of the opposition.

Home-made cake and ice cream were served by the social committee.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wickham, Germantown; and Mrs. James Ernest Ronge, Norristown, were Sunday guests of Miss Nettie McLaughlin, Garden street.

WAR DECLARED ON THE RUBBISH PILE

Whether you are a home owner or an apartment dweller, whether you have a small shop or are the head of a great industrial concern, the menace of fire threatens the loss of everything that is of value to you.

Fire Prevention Week, October 9th to 15th, is designated each year by proclamation of the President of the United States. It is for the purpose of reminding you of the ever-present danger of fire, which is as great a menace today to this civilized nation as it was to the early inhabitants of the world. Modern fire-fighting science and equipment have greatly reduced the losses from fire, but a nation of intelligent, progressive and constructive people should not have any losses—a flagrant waste each year of valuable property worth almost a half billion dollars—a sacrifice of thousands upon thousands of lives. Think of this deplorable condition. What a record for America!

But we do not have to bear this shame forever! We can declare war against fire now! How? Dig out that rubbish from your basement and attic—make a clean sweep of your premises. Toss out all papers, rags, junk, worthless keepsakes and old clothes. Get rid of all such obstacles to health and safety.

Clean the soot from the chimney flues and replace old, worn-out pipes and parts with new, safe material. Inspect electric wiring and outlets and have an electrician make necessary repairs. Where property is not safe from fire, do not waste a moment's time in installing fire-resistive materials which will defeat the spread of flames.

You may not have had a fire for twenty years—you may never have had a fire—but you are certainly not immune from having one.
A new fire occurs every minute of the day and night, and yours may occur this very night.

Free Exhibition of Cooking To Be Held Here Saturday

At 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. on Saturday there will be conducted demonstrations of economy cooking in Mutual Aid Society Hall, 1018 Wood street.
These demonstrations are sponsored by a large number of manufacturers of food products and kitchen equipment. Well known home economists and dietitians will explain how to conserve food values, present new recipes, and demonstrate new and unusual methods of preparing wholesome meals at a minimum cost.

Admission is free and nothing is sold.

The sponsors have announced that many valuable prizes and souvenirs will be distributed to those who attend and that music and entertainment will add a touch of gaiety to the affair.

These demonstrations are of a series being presented in Southeastern Pennsylvania. Because of the large crowds which attended in other communities the sponsors have suggested that those who wish to secure good seats come early.

GRADY-CONLEY NUPTIALS ARE PERFORMED TODAY

Rev. John Conroy, Saugerties, N. Y., Reads The Mass Here

LEAVE FOR FLORIDA

A charming Fall wedding took place at 9 a. m. today in St. Mark's Church, when Miss Mary V. Conley, daughter of P. J. Conley, 1527 Wilson avenue, became the bride of William B. Grady, Annandale, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs.
P. J. Grady, Phillipsburg, N. J.

The ceremony was solemnized with a nuptial mass, read by Rev. John Conroy, Saugerties, N. Y., a cousin of the groom. Rev. Paul E. Baird, acting-pastor of St. Mark's Church, Rev.
Francis Mealy, curate of St. Mark's, and Rev. Marcellino Romagnolo, pastor of St. Ann's Church, were in the sanctuary.

Mrs. C. W. Johnson, 239 McKinley street, attended her sister, as matron of honor, while Mrs. Milton Knott, Bridgewater, also a sister of the bride, and Miss Madeline McCue, West Philadelphia, were bridesmaids. James St.
John, Trenton, N. J., served as best man; and the ushers included Messrs.
Joseph Grady, Phillipsburg, N. J., a brother of the groom; Edward and William Conley, brothers of the bride, and Joseph McGlynn, the latter three of Bristol.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Miss Catherine Keatling presided at the organ, accompanied by Frederick Wombwell, violinist, a member of the Cathedral Choir, Trenton, N. J.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. J. Glenn Thompson sang "Morning," and upon its entrance Mrs. Thompson sang the processional, "Faithful and True;" at the beginning of the mass, "Thou I'm Called by the Master Above," was sung by Mrs.
Stanley Haggerty, Germantown, and at the consecration, Mrs. Haggerty sang, "Oh Lord, I Am Not Worthy." During the offertory, Karl Christopher, Trenton, N. J., was the soloist, rendering Gounod's "Ave Maria," and at the conclusion of the mass, Mr. Christopher sang, "Calm As the Night."

Mrs. Grady was attired in a costume of ivory white toned wedding ring velvet, fashioned on princess lines and featuring a mid-Victorian neck effect, and short puffed sleeves. The skirt featured a long train. Her veil was worn cap effect, with a chin strap, and reached to the waist line in back. It was made of bridal veiling and featured a nose veil. With this, Mrs.
Grady wore ivory toned moire slippers, elbow length velvet gloves of ivory hue and carried an arm bouquet of long stemmed white lilies.

The attendants' frocks were also of wedding ring velvet and were distinctive in their simplicity. The matron of honor's was of lettuce green shade, made empire fashion, with leg of mutton sleeves. Her slippers of moire were of matching shade, as was also her turban of velvet, which bore a trim of the braided material and a buckle. She carried a small muff of the material and wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Knott's and Miss McCue's frocks were made similarly, the former's being of French peach tone and the latter's of Mimosa yellow. The

INCREASE SHOWN IN TOTAL VOTERS IN BUCKS COUNTY

20% More Registered Now Than in Year 1932

53,930 ARE REGISTERED

Republicans Number 32,433 and 8744 Democrats on Lists

The total registration of voters in Bucks county for 1932 numbers 53,930 according to figures compiled at the office of the Bucks County Commissioners at Doylestown.

Of this total there are 32,433 Republicans and 8,744 Democrats. The figures show 17,541 male Republicans and 14,892 female Republicans. There are 5160 male Democrats and 3584 female Democrats.

Other parties, including Socialist and Prohibition, have a total registration of exactly 100, including 62 men and 38 women.

In compiling the registration figures, there was found to be a total of 12,553 voters who have no party affiliation whatsoever, including 5100 males and 7553 females.

Compared with 1928 the registration this year shows an increase of approximately 20 per cent in the number of Republican registrations, compared to 10 per cent increase for the Democratic registrations. The "no party" registrations have been decreased 1636 in four years.

Percentage comparisons show that approximately 60 per cent plus, of all registrations in 1932 are Republicans; 16 per cent plus are Democrats; 23 per cent plus are registered with no party affiliation; and considerably less than one per cent are "other parties," such as Prohibition and Socialist.

DISCOVERING AMERICA

Today is an appointed legal holiday in celebration of the discovery of this continent by Christopher Columbus, who is supposed to have reached the New World on October 12, 1492. Exact dates and priority of discovery may be matters of doubt, but this does not diminish the credit and glory of the great navigator's achievement. He sailed a difficult and dangerous ocean, risked his life and fortune and was bold in faith and deed for the sake of an idea whose eventual realization he could not have anticipated. And he discovered America, for his voyaging turned legend into certainty and set in motion a current of events which is the history of a continent.

It is only an empty honor to name a day for a great man and find no lesson in his story. Columbus, therefore, should be a popular hero and an example for perennial respect. And it is written in his record that he saw America as a land of beauty and promise, of wealth and greatness and as the home of a nation. More than four centuries later a little time can be spared to honor the man who saw America as the citizens of the United States should see it themselves today.

CHAPTER XXXII.

IF HE was surprised when she came into his shack just before six o'clock that evening, he did not show it.

"That you, sweetheart?" he mumbled, stretching his long neck, and rolling over on the couch where he was lying, smoking and reading.

She came toward him, trailing a fox scarf, smiling a little self-consciously, not quite sure of her reception.

Her gloved hand touched his cheek lightly. "Who did you think it was?"

He grinned. "Oh, one of my admirers. Some female pursuing me." But he took her into his arms, straining her to him passionately, kissing her ruffled golden hair, loving her. And she forgot what she had come to say.

"Oh Avery—I can't get along without you! It's no use trying, I love you! I love you!"

"My kitten," he murmured, holding her close. "My kitten scratched me last night."

So when Ralph called to take Crystal to dinner he found the apartment empty, and left a little note in the mail box.

It had been a hard day. He and Allan had clashed furiously over a small matter of office policy. Allan was changing. (It tinged to be as bad as old Greely.)

And there had been a distressing scene with Greely, too. He wished that there was someone to talk to, someone who would understand.

Perhaps for the first time in his life, he thought seriously of marriage. If he and Crystal were married she'd be there in the apartment waiting for him. A dozen pictures of Crystal in a gay little house, pouring coffee . . .

Crystal on his arm, the envy of all beholders, at some important function. Ever, swathed in folds of Madonna blue, smiling down at the child in her arms. . . .

And because he was lonely, and wanted to talk to someone, he turned the car toward Geary Street, and Daphne.

"Oh, Crystal's getting along just fine!" Mrs. Haines told the neighbors, especially Mrs. Turner whose Betty May had just got married with a great flourish of tulle and orange blossoms, and her picture in the San Jose paper.

But in her heart she was worried, terribly worried. Why didn't Crystal marry McKevitt when she had the chance, instead of running wild with artists, and running up the bills, and hardly a note to her own mother?

"Of course, it's lovely that Betty May got married, she told Mrs. Turner, with her voice like honey and jealousy, bitter as gall, in her mouth. "Too bad Betty May's picture in the paper wasn't better. It looked like she had cast in one eye. Yes, she'll make a real nice little wife. I always say if a girl has no talent for a career she may as well get married. If my Crystal wasn't so talented I'd want her to. Did I tell you they're all talking about her water-color pictures?"

"Yes, you did," Mrs. Turner said quickly. "But you haven't mentioned Daphne in a long time. I wouldn't be surprised if she'd get married. The men always like that soft, gentle kind like her and Betty May."

Daphne . . . always Daphne . . . She had been such a quiet, inconspicuous child, who would have thought so many would remember her?

Even the tradesmen, who came to bring the meat and vegetables asked, "How's the little girl, Mrs. Haines? I mean the little black haired one?" Daphne?

And never a question about Crystal, the apple of her eye. It hurt.

"The butcher boy was asking about Daphne today," she told old man Haines, bitterly. "It sounds fine, I must say. I gave him a piece of my mind."

"Oh, he didn't mean anything," the old man said amiably. "She had that mild way about her. You'd be surprised how many folks ask about her, they all seem to like her. It makes me feel kinda bad, not having any news."

"It makes a monkey out of you!" his wife returned, quick to take the advantage. "And a lot she cares how cheap you look. I don't want to make you any worry, but I tell you if she was my daughter, and the butcher boy acted like he did I'd worry I would. I must say it looked funny the way she left all of a sudden without stopping to half pack and—"

But he was used to her tantrums now. He didn't half listen. "Yes, Adeline," he'd mumble, reading the newspaper. "Yes, yes."

A lot of satisfaction trying to talk to him! Getting too old and childish to even listen! "Oh, why did I marry him?" she mourned. "If I hadn't come out here in this God-forsaken farm I'd have my baby with me yet. Crystal would never have left me if I'd stayed in town. . . . Him and his daughter, bah!"

She looked at his shiny, bald head, and high! And his sagging jowls, and his long, weak mouth. . . . "Buried alive! That's what I am. Buried out here, with that!"

Getting feeble, too. Next thing he'd be bedridden. Helpless.

He had fallen asleep over his papers. His head had fallen forward, his mouth was open, the lower jaw dropped. He looked like . . . like . . .

"Abner! Wake 'up!" she screamed, and shook him savagely. "What's that? You call me, Adeline?" he mumbled thickly, struggling back to consciousness.

"Yes, I did. I'm sick and tired of seeing you fall asleep every two minutes. Can't you keep awake at all?"

"In awake, wide awake—per!" fly wide a wake." The time he snored, and with a snort of disgust she went into the pantry and looked at the top shelf, where, hidden behind the canned tomatoes, she had hidden a squat green bottle. Peach brandy. She had found it in the cellar, in a dark, dusty corner. Four bottles, just alike. Neatly arranged, one behind the other, flanked by mildewed jelly marked "Plum, 1897," and a stone crock of something that once upon a time was apple butter. Somebody's forgotten hoard, Abner's mother's, most likely. She must like him, little drink!" Adeline said to herself, bringing the four green bottles in the light. "Well, it'll be good in case of sickness."

She wasn't sick, exactly, but she wasn't well, either. How could anyone be well with Abner looking like a corpse one minute, and snoring fit to kill the next? So she had opened the first bottle, "to quiet the nerves," and then the next, and now only one was left.

"If I had a doctor it's just what he'd prescribe," she told herself, pouring a little into an egg cup. I'm that nervous, only Abner is getting so stingy I hardly have the strength to fight for one!"

Crystal wouldn't have recognized her mother if she had come upon her suddenly in the pantry, and seen this old woman with her bloated face and unkempt hair, holding the egg-cup in her trembling hands. Adeline Garretty Haines, who a few short months ago had been almost young!

But Crystal wasn't there to see. No one but Abner, and Abner didn't count.

Sometimes Adeline turned from her mirror with loathing for herself. She would pat her double chin, pull the sagging contours of her face upward. "If anything happens to Abner, I'll have plenty to do with. I'll have my face lifted, lots of women do. An' I'll die!"

But no use bothering now. Time enough . . . later.

"If anything happens to Abner . . . " "After Abner's gone?" It was her consolation at first. She searched his face avidly for signs of "something" happening . . . the man couldn't last forever. She read what the fat brown doctor book had to say about apoplexy. He had all the symptoms.

For a while she was happy. Planning. Planning great things. But the habit grew, she began to plan in the night, after the lights were out. Sleep went away. She lay panting and tossing in the dark . . . To wake and find him dead beside her, his jaw fallen, his fat face gray.

Sometimes she would wake up screaming, the rattle of the hearse in her ears, the feel of clammy flesh upon her . . .

"What's the matter, Adeline?" he would ask, startled.

And she couldn't tell him. She could never tell anyone. But the peach brandy helped a little, and waiting for Crystal's letters kept her mind partially off her troubles.

HIGH SCHOOL SQUAD IS READY FOR MT. HOLLY

After having successfully met and defeated the Red and Blue Langhorne eleven, the local high school squad has started a week of hard practice before the game with Mt. Holly to be played on Saturday, at Mt. Holly.

These Jersey lads have a fine reputation, and have always given us a good game. This year they have a bigger and heavier team than Bristol High, but the Cardinal and Gray hopes to win by their excellent line and team work.

This week, the high school coaches under Dougherty are drilling the backs on charging and running low. This is done by stretching a piece of white cord across the goal posts and running the backs under it. The tackling dummy is being used extensively by the line. Blocking and dummy practice finishes up a day's practice.

Due to an injury, Piazza has been missing from practice for two days. Whether this injury will keep him out until Saturday has not as yet been learned. Because of this, Coach Dougherty is practicing drop-kicking with Roe and Borneice. Neither have the technique of Cole and Piazza, but both are showing great progress.

Due to the large crowds of spectators turning out to watch practice, Coach Dougherty asks that all remain on the track.

Woman Injured; Two Men Have A Narrow Escape

A woman was injured and two men narrowly escaped serious hurts yesterday when an automobile crashed into a pole and then became wedged between a stone culvert and guard rail on the Lincoln Highway, near Oxford Valley.

Mrs. Mary Allhand, 63 years old, of 3223 Avenue R, Brooklyn, received lacerations of the face and nose and is being held for observation at St. Francis' Hospital. Her husband, George, 64 years old, and George McLeod, 46 years old, also of Brooklyn, the family chauffeur, were shaken up.

McLeod pulled out of traffic and was passing another car when he saw a truck approaching in the opposite direction. According to Corporal J. T. Buddhas, of the Langhorne State Highway Patrol, McLeod then lost control of the machine, which hit the telegraph pole and snapped it off.

Morrisville Chauffeur Wins Suit; Verdict $750

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—For $750, Thomas F. Clabby, 70, of this city, today settled a suit brought against him by his former chauffeur.

The verdict, fixed by a jury after a conference between opposing counsel and Judge Parry, in Common Pleas Court, is in favor of Elmer S. Mason, of Morrisville, near Trenton.

When the suit was entered, in 1931, Mason charged the aged man destroyed his wife's affections for him and induced her to leave him and return to her parents' home in Detroit, on money furnished by Clabby. He charged Clabby, a former Atlantic City bathhouse owner, became "angry" when he married the young woman and immediately set out to wreck the marriage.

Edward McBride, Germantown, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James Blanche, Radcliffe street.

of the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society is needed more than it ever has been before, adding that the effects of undernourishment will be felt for many years to come, and is a special menace to health now. It is to be hoped, he said, that the people of Bucks county will realize more keenly than ever the need for their generous support to save possible victims of the disease through this work of the society.

Dr. Krusen, a native of Richboro, always welcomed to his native county, told of the battle against this very old disease. Galen, hundreds of years ago, he said, wrote of the disease and the frightful way in which it was communicated to all who slept with or associated with victims. Dr. Krusen then went on to narrate the interesting history of the discovery of the stethoscope, the percussion method of discovering pulmonary troubles, Roentgen's discovery of the X-Ray which helps to discover the disease in its early stages, Koch's discovery of the theory of bacteriology—all learned more or less through accident, by observant men of keen intellect who saw their value and developed them.

"I want to encourage you to continue this needed fight against tuberculosis," said Dr. Krusen. "It never was needed more than at the present time. It should not be difficult for any one to appreciate the value of any work that will decrease the ravages of the disease when you realize that it has the worst record of any disease, taking human life between the ages of 15 and 45—the great productive period in the lives of human beings. The death rate from tuberculosis between 15 and 45 is greater than for any of the five most deadly diseases.

"In spite of the great drop in the death rate," he added, "tuberculosis still is the chief cause of death during the productive years mentioned."

To show the value of such work as the county society is carrying on, Dr. Krusen pointed out that it has been a big factor in reducing the death rate 50 per cent in 35 years.

Dr. Krusen also urged the great importance of public education which will arouse society to a realization of the dangers it runs and which will bring better health habits and co-operation with health clinics. "This sort of co-operation," he said, "stimulates and encourages the medical profession." Incidentally he referred to "Public Health Day."

The working man and woman, he continued, naturally are paying more attention to preserving their health today than ever before because only fit men and women are efficient and able to hold their jobs.

There is a growing appreciation, he said, that more care of the health is important because early discovery leads to early cure—and prevents the spreading of such diseases as tuberculosis which once went through whole families.

Max and Jack Again in June

By HARDIN BURNLEY

SCHMELING

HIS KAYO VICTORY OVER WALKER EARNED HIM A RETURN MATCH WITH CHAMPION JACK SHARKEY!

BURNLEY

© 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.
 Great Britain rights reserved

MAX SCHMELING has decided that he will spend the Christmas holidays with his folks in Germany. And that decision has knocked into a cocked hat any ideas the Madison Square Garden managers may have had of a Schmeling-Carnera or Schmeling-Baer fight in December.

Der Maxie, following his sensational victory over the diminutive Mickey Walker, mentioned something about a busy winter. He seemed keen on a fight right away either with Carnera or with Baer. But Manager Joe Jacobs, pretty certain that Maxie will get the promised shot at Jack Sharkey next June, vetoed the idea.

Schmeling is anxious to get another fight under his belt before making his bid to regain his title from Sharkey. And it is almost a certainty that he will meet Carnera during the winter at the Garden in New York or at Miami where the Garden Corporation has a perfectly good arena going to waste.

If his opponent is Maxie Baer, Schmeling is in for a tough evening. Baer looms right now as the Number-Three man of the heavyweight ranks. In two recent victories, over Schaaf and Tully Griffiths, proved that he is one of the heaviest punchers in the game.

However, Schmeling is confident of getting by either Baer or Carnera and he is also confident of reversing things when he again faces Sharkey in June.

Following the Walker fight the experts were quick to concede that if Schmeling fights Sharkey with the same aggressive, hard-punching tactics he used against Walker, he is sure to win, possibly by a knock-out. Max did look good against Walker, there is no denying that. But then Walker, all through the fight was coming to Max, walking in throwing left hooks to the body. This was pie for Schmeling's right cross and it was this blow which badly speled pugilistic doom for the courageous Mickey.

But in Sharkey Der Maxie will not have an opponent who will walk into punches. Instead the German may have to take the aggressive, as he was forced to do in the last fight, and as a result lose much of his effectiveness.

"You're telling ME they're Milder?"

"EVERYWHERE I go, I have to listen to the same thing. 'Try Chesterfields. Honestly, they are milder, and you simply must try them!'

"Me . . . try Chesterfields! Why, I haven't smoked anything else. That's how important mildness and better taste are to me!

"No wonder Chesterfield smokers are so enthusiastic."
